Fender Jazzmaster Ultralight

Usually when someone says "Fender Jazzmaster" it conjures visions of vintage guitars so sought after it takes a second mortgage to get one. That might change as a result of the new Fender Jazzmaster Ultralight amplifier head unit, a two-channel, 250-watt solid-state amp that weighs 7 pounds. In addition to standard EQ controls, the amp has DSP effects on each channel (reverb, delay, chorus, flange, Vibratone, tremolo and combinations) and a tube-emulated overdrive channel.

Pearl Reference Series Metal Snare Drums

While all the other drums in Pearl's wildly popular Reference Series are wooden, the company has introduced four new metal Reference snare drums. Two of the drums, the 14 x 5 inch RFS-1450 and 14 x 6.5 inch RFS-1465, feature three-millimeter, seamless cast-steel shells for enhanced projection, crispness and sensitivity. The other pair, the 14 x 5 inch RFB-1450 and 14 x 6.5 inch RFB-1465, are built from rolled and welded, three-millimeter brass shells and thus offer warmer tone.

PianoWizard

For the kids (and the adults who act like kids), Piano Wizard presents piano lessons as a video game, and you know how much the kids like the video games. Available for PC only, the software has a number of modes of play, from an interface that's all-out Mario-style to one more in line with actual notes on the staff. The software comes with a selection of music but can be augmented with any MIDI files you care to use. A MIDI-capable keyboard is required.

Roland Juno-G Synthesizer

Sharing the same processor as keyboards in Roland's Fantom-X series,
