Another Elvis "Citing"

Talk about leaving a lasting impression: Peter Dinklage's award-winning "Five Top-Fearning Dead Celebrities Cited Elvis Presley at 80" for the fifth year in a row! Although the King of Rock & Roll passed away back in 1977, his music is still going strong, generating $85 million for his estate in just one year!

Weezer's Class Act

River Cuomo, Weezer's bespectacled frontman, is trading Beverly Hills, CA, for Cambridge, MA, and returning to Harvard University in February. He plans on graduating in June with a degree in English.

“Do not fear mistakes. There are none.”—Jazz Legend Miles Davis

Guitar god with an iPod?

Talking Panda's iRocker software lets you turn your iPod into a guitar practice tool. The downloadable package includes a chord-finder (shown left), plus a metronome, tuner, and five play-along chord progressions for you to jam along with. Learn more at talkingpanda.com.

The Piano Game

Did you ever think a video game could teach you something like piano? Allegro Multimedia recently announced the debut of Piano Wizard, which does exactly that! This new video game teaches how to play a song—with colored “notes” that travel to matching piano keys and, through this gameplay, musical logic, theory, and notation are subconsciously learned. The graphics may be targeted at younger players, but with samples of Van Halen and Coldplay, the stuff it teaches is valuable for players of all ages. pianowizard.com
